A proposed Settlement has been reached with Experian Information Solutions, Inc. and Experian Holdings, Inc. ("Experian" or "Defendants") relating to the data breach Experian announced in October 2015, where an unauthorized user potentially accessed the names, addresses, social security numbers, dates of birth, identification numbers (e.g. driver's license numbers, military ID numbers or passport numbers), and other personally identifiable information ("PII") of approximately 16 million T-Mobile customers and applicants who applied for service or device financing through September 16, 2015 (the "Data Breach"). Plaintiffs claim that Experian did not adequately protect their personal information. Defendants deny any wrongdoing. No judgment or determination of wrongdoing has been made.

Who is Included? Records indicate you are included in this Settlement as a Class Member. Class Members are the 15,992,099 T-Mobile USA customers or applicants who were notified on or around October 1, 2015, that their PII was stored on the Experian server that was accessed by an unauthorized user in the Data Breach.

What does the Settlement Provide?
